Please join us for the 21st annual Heritage Days on Saturday, June 23 and Sunday, June 24. We are looking forward to another great weekend celebrating Montgomery County history, culture, and nature!

We are happy to add two new programs to our wide range of activities across the heritage area. Grusendorf Log House (1855) in Seneca Creek State Park is the last surviving structure from the earliest Germantown settlement. They will offer old time crafts and games for children as well as stories of local Civil War history.

Montgomery Parks’ Thomas Mill is an archaeological site in historic Brookeville where visitors can explore the ruins and see recovered artifacts associated with Montgomery County’s milling past. Children can make their own grindstone and other crafts.

As you plan your visits, please take a look at the Heritage Days page on our website where we have compiled some suggested “tours” to help you make the most of your weekend. They are organized both by locale and topic. For example, you’ll find a variety options if you spend the afternoon in either the Poolesville or Sandy Spring areas, or you may decide to explore the wide range of early schoolhouses scattered throughout the county.

Pack a picnic, load the kids in the car, and celebrate Heritage Days as you explore the fascinating sites that help make Montgomery County great!
LETTER FROM THE DIRECTOR

Finally, after a busy winter, we welcome summer! 2018’s Mini-Grant awardees are wrapping up some really great projects. Watch for new interpretive panels at Carderock along the C&O Canal, Agricultural Reserve welcome signage at White’s Ferry, and program banners at Glen Echo, to name a few. Applications for our next grant round will be available on our website by mid-August. Please start thinking now about projects you’d like see for 2019.

We are in the early stages of planning a new heritage event for the fall. On Saturday, October 20, we will kick off an annual Harvest Day event. For several years, farmers and visitors to the Ag Reserve have been asking for a fall tour of farms and farmers’ markets, creating an opportunity to show off our heritage farms and produce. Thanks to Sophia Watkins of Soleado Lavender Farm and Tony Cohen from Button Farm for helping pull together a fun day of shopping and exploring!

Here in the office, we have been working hard on a boundary amendment to the existing heritage area. Among those who will be joining us “officially” are Montgomery County Parks, including Josiah Henson Park; Seneca Creek State Park; Germantown Historic District; and Pleasant View Historic Site. The amendment will add sites vital to making our heritage area a truly remarkable destination.

Please get out and enjoy Heritage Days weekend, June 23rd and 24th! Nearly 40 sites will be open for free and offering a great time for all! From jazz music to heritage walking tours to a kangaroo at the Silver Spring B&O Railroad Station, come explore Montgomery County’s heritage!

COMINGS & GOINGS

We are very pleased to welcome Danielle Verbiest who joined our staff as a part-time Administrative Director in March. Danielle brings a wide skillset that includes organization operations, event coordination, and volunteer management. Her extensive experience working in non-profit organizations includes the Literacy Council of Montgomery County and Voices for Children Montgomery. Originally from the Netherlands, Danielle is multi-lingual and brings an international flair to our office. She lives a hop, skip, and a jump from the HM office with her husband, Ahmed, and daughter, Zahra, a rising high school freshman.

REMEMBERING PEGGY ERICKSON

We are very sorry to share the news of the passing of Peggy Erickson, Heritage Montgomery’s founding executive director. From HM’s inception in 2003 until her retirement in 2013, Peggy was instrumental in developing our organization’s mission and establishing the heritage area as a significant county asset.

Under her leadership, Heritage Montgomery produced two exceptional documentary films: the Emmy Award-winning Life in a War Zone: Montgomery County during the Civil War and Community Cornerstones: African American Communities in Montgomery County, Maryland, which was especially close to her heart.

We owe Peggy a debt of gratitude not only for her tireless efforts on behalf of our organization, our heritage area, and our county, but for the enthusiasm and fun she brought to everything she did.

MINI-GRANT PROJECT UPDATES

Work is progressing well on all of our FY18 Mini Grants. We had an especially strong slate of projects this year and would like to bring you up to date on just a few:

Montgomery Preservation’s project updating the Montgomery County Cemetery Inventory is well underway. Project coordinator Glenn Wallace has trained more than 80 volunteers who are surveying, photographing, and researching all known burial sites in the county, including those in several of our historic African American communities. He and project director Eileen McGuckian are working with Montgomery Planning and Montgomery Parks to both coordinate information needed for planning purposes and identify burial sites on park land.

New interpretive signage for Black Rock Mill in Seneca Creek State Park is close to completion. The striking ruins of the 1816 stone mill offer a cut-away look at an old milling operation, complete with reinstalled gears and machinery. New panels being developed by Maryland Park Ranger/Historian Erik Ledbetter will detail the grain trade in pre-Civil War Maryland, the role of the mill as a social center in rural life, and the mill’s technological innovations.

Audubon Naturalist Society is working on a video documenting the history of land use at their Woodend Nature Sanctuary. It will also highlight some of the important educational and hands-on conservation work for which the organization is so well known.

HISTORIC PRESERVATION AWARDS

Heritage Montgomery was the very proud recipient of The Montgomery Prize at the 2017 Awards for Historic Preservation. The award recognizes HM’s work influencing “the quality, proliferation, and accessibility of heritage and history programs throughout Montgomery County.” Co-sponsored by Montgomery Preservation and Save Our Seminary at Forest Glen, the annual rewards were held on March 23 at the National Park Seminary Ballroom. Accepting the award from County Executive Isiah Leggett, Sarah Rogers commented, “It’s wonderful to work in a county with so much to offer and with so much support from its citizens and government.”

We would like to offer special congratulations to long-time Heritage Montgomery Board Member Scott Whipple and our partner, Peerless Rockville.

Scott won the Wayne M. Goldstein Preservation Advocacy Award. As the former Supervisor of the M-NCPPC Historic Preservation Office, his “leadership has [had] a lasting impact on the County’s historic preservation office and commission.” Peerless Rockville was recognized for the Outstanding Educational Program Series, “Emancipation to Integration: 150 Years of Advancement in Educational Equality,” commemorating the long struggle by Montgomery County African Americans for equality in education.

LOVING CHARITY HALL

Great progress is being made on the restoration of Loving Charity Hall at the Warren Historic Site in Dickerson. Stop by over Heritage Days weekend for a sneak peek – the official ribbon cutting is being planned for later in the year.

Warren will join over 17 other historic destinations throughout the county as part of Heritage Montgomery’s African American Heritage Tours, shining a light on the rich traditions and history of local communities and the lessons passed down to us.
HISTORY DAY

The 19th annual Montgomery County History Day contest was held on Saturday, March 17 at Richard Montgomery High School. This competition offers middle and high school students the opportunity to apply their interest in history to presentations in the formats of exhibits, papers, documentaries, performances, and websites. This year’s theme was Conflict and Compromise. A part of the National History Day program as well as History Day in Maryland, winners advanced to compete at the Maryland History Day Conference in April held at the University of Maryland, Baltimore County.

Heritage Montgomery was once again proud to sponsor the African American Heritage category. Junior Division winners from Eastern Middle School Lydia Ye, Paris Ye, and Angelica Frude presented The FHA’s Effect on Black Housing: The Legalization of Segregation in American Neighborhoods. The Senior Division winner was from The Bullis School. Kianna Dorsey presented The Conflict at Hand, the Compromise at Heart: Martin Luther King, Jr. vs. Malcolm X.

Montgomery County History Day, presented by Montgomery County Public Schools working with the Maryland Humanities Council, was supported by a 2018 Heritage Montgomery Mini Grant. This annual event is a great place for a really fun day volunteering as a judge – mark your calendars for next year!

HISTORY CONFERENCE

On January 27, the Montgomery County Historical Society (Montgomery History) presented the 12th annual Montgomery County History Conference to a record-breaking crowd at the Montgomery College Germantown campus.

As always, the History Conference offered attendees a wide range of fascinating topics to consider. From local leaders’ roles in launching the American Revolution, African American communities and the Underground Railroad, and the Spanish Flu epidemic of 1918 to Thurgood Marshall and early civil rights in Montgomery County, Jewish Developers and the Built Environment (1930-1979), and Latino and Muslim experiences in the county. A discussion of the documentary, Feast Your Ears: The Story of WHFS, 102.3FM, brought back fond memories the beloved progressive rock radio station in Bethesda that broadcast from the late ‘60s to early ‘80s. A final highlight of the day was noted forensic anthropologist Doug Owsley whose research is revealing incredible details about the lives and deaths of early colonial Americans.

Heritage Montgomery is pleased to have once again been a History Conference sponsor.
Outdoor recreational activities abound at this 6,300-acre State Park surrounding Clopper Lake and its extensive nature trails along Great Seneca Creek. Park visitors can enjoy hiking and biking, boat access and rentals, picnic areas/pavilions, playgrounds & ball fields, disc golf, and fishing.

There are a number of striking historic sites throughout the park including Grusendorf Log House (1855); the archaeological remains of the Clopper family estate, Woodlands; the Seneca Historic District including ruins of the Seneca Stone Mill and Quarries; the remains of Black Rock Mill (1815); and the stunning Schwartz Peony Garden.
